

Steffen Syversten – CEO, Å Energi (NO)

Steffen Syversten is CEO of Å Energi, a leading renewable energy company in Norway and the Nordic region. Under his management, Å Energi is investing heavily in hydropower and grid, but also has ambitious plans for strengthening the company's position in other parts of the renewable value chain through investments and M&As, as well as new Norwegian and international partnerships.

Mr. Syversten is an established profile in the Norwegian energy debate and on green energy transition. He advocates for the importance of creating a more resilient and efficient energy system, including an improved utilisation of renewable energy, across Europe. He is also invested in the current debate on energy security and critical infrastructure.

Mr. Syversten is currently serving as Chairman in Renewables Norway, an industry organization representing about 400 companies involved in the production, distribution and trading of renewable energy. He has more than 15 years of industrial experience from several executive roles, in addition to multiple board positions. Syversten holds i.a. a master's degree in business administration from the Norwegian School of Economics and an Executive MBA from INSEAD.
